

USFOODSAFETY.COM
Food Safety for Consumers

Media Contact:

Marianne Sabella Dempsey

On behalf of USFoodSafety.com

508-435-2020

marianne@sabellacomm.com

cell: 617-233-8675

MEDIA ALERT

USFOODSAFETY.COM PROVIDES COMPLETE, UP-TO-DATE LIST OF RECALLED PEANUT BUTTER PRODUCTS LINKED TO THE NATIONWIDE SALMONELLA OUTBREAK

WILMINGTON, MASS, JANUARY 20, 2009: US Food Safety Corporation announced today its website, USFoodSafety.com, the first website to provide consumers with the most up-to-date food safety alerts, recalls, advice and columns, will provide a complete, easy-to-access listing of all recalled peanut butter and peanut paste products. The recalled products have been linked to the recent nationwide salmonella outbreak, which has sickened many people and caused at least six deaths.

The updated recall list can be found at <http://blog.USFoodSafety.com>. Consumers can continue to check the list for updates or sign up for free subscriptions to USFoodSafety.com's e-mail alert service at <http://www.usfoodsafety.com/subscribe>. By signing up for the e-mail alert service, members will automatically receive the latest food safety product alerts, delivered directly to their inboxes.

USFoodSafety.com also provides the latest food safety articles, covering food safety tips, general food safety handling tips, as well as food safety topics of interest, like the recent impact of melamine in our food supply chain.

About US Food Safety Corporation

US Food Safety Corporation is a privately funded, woman-owned company located in Massachusetts. Through its web site USFoodSafety.com the company intends to become the premier "one-stop" source of consumer information related to food alerts, recalls and safe food handling.